

BCS Oxfordshire Branch Christmas Lecture:
The Spy in the Coffee Machine

Thursday 4th December 2008, 7:00pm - 9:30pm

Speaker:

Dr. Kieron O'Hara, Senior Research Fellow, Southampton University

Location:

Oxford University, Rewley House, 1 Wellington Square
Oxford OX1 2JA

This talk, subtitled "The End of Privacy as We Know It", is based on our speaker's new book about the implications of privacy in today's increasingly web-based world.

With chapters titled "They Snoop to Conquer" and "A Man's Best Friend is his Blog", the book, co-authored with BCS past president Nigel Shadbolt, treats a serious subject in a refreshingly light-hearted and accessible way. Kieron will talk about the issues raised in the book and the implications for us and the generations to come.

Mulled wine and minced pies are being served from 7:00pm

The talk is hosted by the local branch of the British Computer Society.
It is free! members and non-members are welcome.

For more information visit: www.oxon.bcs.org