Web 2 Woe: cybercrime on social Networks

Graham Cluley, Senior Technology Consultant, Sophos Plc.

Thursday 14th October 2010 - 7:30pm
Oxford e-Research Centre, 6 Keble Road, Oxford, OX1 3QG

Social networking sites like Facebook, Twitter & MySpace are increasingly the target for financially-motivated hackers.

Their intention? To infect computers, spread spam, seize profiles and commit identity theft.

This talk covers how attacks have continued to evolve, how social networking sites are trying to defend against it, and what companies and individuals can do to better defend themselves.

The event is free.

Members and non-members are very welcome.

Wine, sandwiches & light refreshments served from 7:00pm.
